SPEAKER BIOGRAPHIES

Mark Hinshaw, FAIA, FAICP

LMN Architects

Mark Hinshaw is the Director of Urban Design for LMN Architects, a 110-person firm based in Seattle. For over twenty-five years, he has been responsible for a wide range of projects in large cities, suburban centers, and small towns including downtown development, public spaces and pedestrian facilities, design-oriented codes and guidelines, and master plans for public facilities. He has served as President of the Washington Chapter of the American Planning Association and as President of the Seattle Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. In addition, he has served on the national Board of Directors for the American Institute of Certified Planners.

From 1982-1990, he was Principal Urban Designer for the City of Bellevue, WA, helping guide its transformation from a nondescript collection of strip centers to an intense, mixed use, transit-oriented urban center. A Seattle resident, he has served on the Seattle Design Commission, which reviews all public projects, and he has chaired the Downtown Design Review Board, which reviews private development in the core area of the city. He has also served on the Mayor's Housing Levy Oversight Committee, which monitors the use of funds from a voter-approved low income housing tax. And he served on the board of directors for the Seattle Housing Resources Group (now HRG Seattle) which has developed more than 2000 units of below-market rate housing within and near downtown Seattle.

Hinshaw lectures widely on the subject of urban design at conferences and workshops. He has written for a number of professional design journals, including Landscape Architecture, Places, Planning, and Architecture. And between 1992 and 2004, he wrote a regular column on architecture and urban design for The Seattle Times. Several years ago, he authored the Planning Advisory Service report entitled Design Review, which is still the only manual available to local governments on the subject. He has authored two books: Citistate Seattle: Shaping a Modern Metropolis (1999) and True Urbanism: Living In and Near the Center, which was just recently released.

Vaughn L. Lein, AIA

LSW Architects, P.C.

Vaughn is a skilled facilitator, having led over 30 community design workshops. One of his recent civic projects is the Clark County Center for Community Health, which involved the coordination of federal, state, and county entities as well as nonprofit partners. He has dedicated his architectural career to strengthening our community by chairing the Clark County planning commission for 22 years and serving for 20 years on the School Facilities Advisory Board for Washington State.

Casey J. Wyckoff, Associate

LSW Architects, P.C.

A lead designer and planner with LSW Architects, Casey is passionate about creating stronger communities through design. He has worked with public, private, and government agencies throughout the Pacific Northwest. Local clients include Clark College, Vancouver Public Schools, Evergreen Public Schools, Columbia Springs Environmental Resource Center, and numerous private clients. He currently serves on the Clark County Skills Center Foundation Board and the Council of Educational Facilities Planners International.
